August Update from Arrupe

August 2006
Vol. 1, Issue 1

Dear Jeff,

Welcome to the first issue of Arrupe Jesuit High School's monthly email newsletter.

Our mission would not be possible without a tremendous community of supporters - students who are willing to work hard to achieve their dreams, teachers who care about the future of Denver's urban youth, companies that see the potential in our students, and the many benefactors who ensure that we can make the opportunity of an Arrupe education available to all students in our community, regardless of family income.

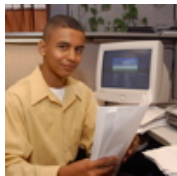

This newsletter provides a valuable way for us to keep you informed of our growth and development. If you would prefer not to receive these monthly updates, please use the link at the bottom of the page to unsubscribe from our mailing list.

Rev. Stephen W. Planning, SJ
President

Work Study Program Grows to Sixty-Five Employers

skills.

Arrupe's Corporate Work Study Program is critical to our mission. Participating companies hire a team of four Arrupe students to fill a full-time entry-level corporate job. Our employment program has grown hand-in-hand with the school, allowing students to support over half the cost of their education while gaining valuable

We started in 2003 with seventeen employers. We will begin this, our fourth year, with over two hundred and fifty students working for sixty-five businesses and nonprofits. We would like to offer a special welcome to the sixteen companies that are hiring Arrupe students for the first time this year:

Snell & Wilmer

Snell & Wilmer is proud to be one of the first Denver businesses to join Arrupe's Corporate Work Study Program, having hired our first team of students in 2003.

It's a win-win partnership. Our staff and attorneys take pride in mentoring our young students, and as the students interact in our workplace, they experience a professional work environment, gain confidence in their ability to do a good job, and become members of our team.

Our first class will graduate in 2007. We are so proud of Michael, Monique, Oscar, and Veronica!

60 Minutes: "In A Class By Itself"

60 Minutes correspondent Vicki Mabrey profiles Cristo Rey Jesuit High School, the school on which Arrupe is modeled. Her report begins, "With all the news about the sad state of education in inner city schools these days - the gangs, the drugs, the high dropout rate - here's one thing you may not have heard about: a successful high school in Chicago where every graduating senior is accepted to college..."

Regis University Features Arrupe in Library Newsletter

"Dressed for success. Sporting a tie and a can-do attitude. Sound like your typical college students? No, these are our Corporate Work-Study students from Arrupe Jesuit High School..."

Janet Lee, Technical Services Librarian at Regis University, describes working with Arrupe students in the library's Spring newsletter.

Arrupe Teacher Provides National Training

Stephan Graham, one of Arrupe's founding staff members, was invited to help train thirty-four teachers from across the country as part of the Cristo Rey Network New Teacher Institute. Stephan teaches physics and chemistry and is a past recipient of a Toyota Tapestry Grant for outstanding science education. The week-long workshop teaches incoming staff members to develop curriculum, integrate their classes with the Work Study Program, and work effectively with students from diverse academic and cultural backgrounds.
